Kidnap and Murder

Abductors collect Rs.2.22 lakh cash from oil merchant; Kill him at Bannur

Mysuru, Jan.30 (RK&BCT)- An oil merchant from city was kidnapped and murdered by a gang after taking Rs.2.22 lakh from the victim's brother-in-law. The accused used the victim's scooter to fetch money, kidnapped him to Bannur, murdered him and dumped the body in a dry canal.

The oil merchant has been identified as 35-year-old Senthil, a resident of Veene Seshanna Road at K.R. Mohalla or Fort Mohalla behind Shanthala Theatre. His body was found by some local villagers inside Raja Parameshwari Canal at Bidrallihundi that has gone dry. The body was found yesterday morning and the Bannur Police had registered a case.

Victim Senthil

On searching the body, the Police found the identity of the oil merchant and informed the City Police. When Senthil's family was informed, they told the Police that Senthil had left home on Monday morning and had not returned home.

The family members told the Police that on Monday, at around 10.45 pm, Senthil called his brother-in-law Nikhil over phone and told him to come near Gun House Circle with Rs.2.22 lakh cash. Police said that as per the instruction from Senthil, Nikhil went with the money.

Nikhil was told that two persons would come to Gun House Circle on his (Senthil's) Suzuki Access scooter (KA-09 EZ-8138) and he should make sure about their identity and hand over the money. Accordingly, Nikhil reached the Gun House Circle at around 11.30 pm with the cash. Nikhil then called Senthil on his mobile phone and told him that two persons had come on the said scooter and were waiting at the designated place. Senthil asked Nikhil to hand over the money to the two persons and Nikhil followed the former's instructions.

Temptingly tasty; tidy?

Aficionados of Mysuru City Corporation had taken a couple of years ago the laudable initiative to facilitate the rapidly expanding virtual army of footpath mobile canteen operators across the city's 65 Wards, in consultation with an expert on the nuances of business from Kolkata. Intending to ease the crowding by the mobile canteen operators as well as their patrons in many streets of the city during the evening hours, resulting in inconvenience to citizens as well as deteriorating sanitation, it was considered appropriate to create platforms in properly selected locations that would satisfactorily address the problems. As time has passed, it is business as usual while the administration in urban local body seems to have not pursued the programme to its logical end. The patrons of mobile canteens seem to be facing no serious problems of food-borne tummy troubles unlike the case of devotees of some places of worship who were felled after consuming prasada.

Similar to creation of kiosks of bhelpuri vendors at Juhu in Mumbai, a few cities in North India are reported to have marked zones in their territories to carry out the business of mobile canteens without any glitch. Also, Bengaluru City Corporation is learnt to have issued 17,000 licences to the operators. However, the manner of functioning by the officials in keeping the system well-oiled leaves much to be desired.

Not known to people at large who are making a beeline to their chosen mobile canteens regularly are two related features namely (a) Most States have framed rules for compliance by mobile canteen operators and (b) India has more than 10 million footpath eateries governed by Street Vendors Act 2014, ensuring rightful place for them in society. Mysuru-based footpath mobile canteen operators enjoy unquestionable visibility in public domain and have proved their competence for entrepreneurship, purely on their own volition. It is common knowledge that most street-based providers of tasty dishes to their Mysuru's clientele are harassed both by law-keepers and functionaries of the urban local body.

The view that if food hubs, as planned earlier, are created at points agreeable to both operators and their patrons, the issue of hygiene would be addressed has its merits. The cost of dishes offered by mobile canteens mocks at the tariff charged in brick 'n' mortar hotels. Also, the youth, being self-employed and shelterless in the footpath enterprise, wear the badge of service-with-a-smile on their sleeves, Mysureans being indirect partners.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Historically, India's trade policies have never succeeded in creating a globally competitive industry. Before 1991, tariff and non-tariff barriers protected infant industries that never quite grew up, fleecing consumers while producing substandard products that would not have withstood any degree of international competition. Post-1991, the narrative of trade liberalisation took over but reductions in tariffs and non-tariff barriers have not sufficiently boosted manufacturing. The share of manufacturing in India's GDP hasn't budged much since 1991. All manufacturing power houses have caused industry further distress — imports have surged and exports have stagnated. — Dhiraj Nayyar in Business Standard.

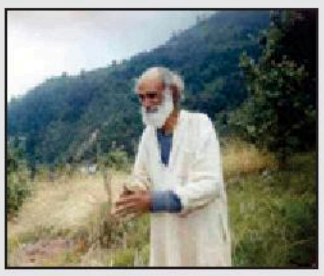
Tree Man of Uttarakhand



Pujargaon: Vishweshwar Dutt Saklani, had who planted over trees and turned his once barren homeland into a lush forest took his last breath on Jan. 18, 2019, but he will live on in the memory of his countrymen as the 'Tree Man of Uttarakhand.'

Saklani had been fond of trees all his life. He planted his first sapling when he was eight years old under his uncle's guidance, and kept at it for the next seven decades of his life, until he lost his sight and succumbed to the hardships of old age. However, by that time, the once barren hills in and around his native village of Pujargaon had already become home to a lush forest. Vishweshwar Dutt Saklani's love for trees is well known, as he often used to call them as his children or his closest companions, but few know that the legendary conservationist planted millions of trees to cope with the tragedies in his life.

Man swallows diamond ring in trance

Turkey: An Irish man, who had swallowed an expensive diamond ring at a jewellery store in Turkey recently told prosecutors that he "fell into a trance" the moment he saw the beautiful diamond.

Ian Campbell, who was vacationing in the Turkish seaside resort of Marmaris, was arrested on October 4, 2018, after swallowing a $40,000 diamond ring at a local jewellery store. Eyewitnesses later told police that Campbell swallowed the jewel in desperation, after realizing that he was going to be caught trying to steal it.

Prosecutors instructed police to take the would-be-thief to the local hospital, where he was administered laxatives to help him "return" the 2.5-carat diamond ring by natural means. Turkish media tracked the "journey" of the jewel through Campbell's stomach almost in real time, but sadly it got stuck and had to be surgically removed. After 36 hours, the tourist agreed to undergo surgery to have the ring removed.

Future of our child in the present rat race

Sir,

In today's rat race, our children, from the tender age of 3, are forced to run with academic grades and related home work. In the process, it is routine for them to accept the tension in life from a tender age. Children are moulded to fit into the examination process and adults expect the child to fit into this mould.

In our school days, daily homework, periodical tests were unheard of till we entered our College. With the fast development in technology, the process of preparing children for their life has taken a new dimension and this generation is running with the system without realising the impact on children. In fact, we have no time to think with our own pre-occupied assignments and work tension.

In today's life, family members rarely get any quality time to sit together and discuss/enjoy. Parents hardly know their children and their potential/interest. They hardly encourage and appreciate the child when he/she does good work. In fact appreciation encourages and motivates the child to move in that direction. Instead we compare the child with others and in the process, the child develops hatred and this further develops with age.

Adults forget the fact that criticising and blaming the child frequently brings his/her self-esteem down and slowly he/she goes to depreciation. Each child has his/her own limits and beyond this, it is not possible to achieve with any amount of pressure.

Some parents insist teachers for daily homework having their own calculations and set mind. In the process, life loses its direction and purpose.

So many articles/write-ups on this issue have had minimum impact on our society and all are running with their child in one direction without realising the value of enjoying life.

Pack of dogs posing danger to walkers at Kukkarahalli Lake

Sir,

Some of the parks in our city have become dog sanctuaries. I am attaching a picture taken at Kukkarahalli Lake sometime back. The sight of a pack of dogs going together is scary and it is a nightmare for morning and evening walkers. A single bite can infect the victim with rabies and its fatal consequence. The population of dogs in Kukkarahalli Kere and Lingambudhi Kere is increasing by the day. There is no attempt to sterilise the dogs.

Are the parks in our city safe for our grandchildren? Are scooter riders who return from office late at night safe? There are many instances of stray dogs chasing the riders leading to fatal accidents.

Hope the competent authority will look into this menace.

Devaraja Market, Lansdowne Building to be razed

MCC Council approves decision; sends recommendation to Govt.

Mysuru, Jan. 30 (SBD&BCT)- The Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) Council, yesterday resolved to recommend to the State Government to demolish and rebuild the iconic Lansdowne Building and Devaraja Market during the Council meeting held at the Old Council Hall of the MCC which was chaired by Mayor Pushpalatha Jagannath.

It may be recalled that a Government-constituted Heritage Committee had opposed the demolitions. Instead, it had recommended end-to-end restoration of both the structures so that they can last for another 50 years or so. Even historians and conservationists had opposed the demolition.

But a Task Force constituted by the Government to ascertain the lifespan and feasibility of the conservation of the structures had recommended the demolition as they are dilapidated and pose a risk for human life and limb. The Task Force had recommended the demolition, maintaining the original façade.

This recommendation was placed before the Heritage Committee last year where the Committee members opposed the demolition and opined that the heritage structures could be conserved. The Task Force was constituted following the collapse of the portion of the Lansdowne Building in August 2012 in which four persons died while a portion of Devaraja Market came crashing down in 2016.

Mayor Pushpalatha Jagannath, flanked by MCC Commissioner K.H. Jagadeesha and Deputy Mayor Shafi Ahmed at the MCC Council meeting held yesterday.

The MCC has now passed a resolution clearing the demolition and subsequent reconstruction of two of the city's architectural landmarks and has sent the recommendation to the State Government. The fate of these two heritage structures now rests in the hands of the government.

At the meeting, Corporators and other members of the MCC Council deliberated on the reports submitted by the Heritage Committee and the Task Force. While the Heritage Committee report unequivocally advocated adoption of measures to preserve these slices of the city's history, the Task Force report called for their demolition. The Council chose to go with the Task Force report.

As the two government-constituted panels offered different opinions, Mysuru Deputy Commissioner had withheld his decision on the fate of the two structures, and subsequently directed the MCC Council to discuss the issue. MCC's Superintending Engineer Suresh said that the State Government would take a final decision on the issue.

Earlier, Corporator SBM Manju sought a clarification whether there is any legal provision to go ahead with the demolition if the government favours for it as the Heritage Committee was against it. Corporator R. Nagaraj said Mysuru is popularly known as 'Heritage City' across the world but there is no official record to substantiate the same. It is only due to the buildings that date back to the period of the Wadiyars that the buildings are called heritage structures, he added.

Encroachments around Mysore Palace

Former Mayor Ayub Khan expressed concerns about encroachments not being cleared around the Mysore Palace at a time when officials from Swachh Survekshan were in city to assess the level of cleanliness.

"Encroachments on footpaths have been cleared in all zones, but the officials are yet to initiate a drive to clear pavements. Hundreds of tourists flock the Palace and other attractions in the area on a daily basis, but the presence of vendors on pavements makes it hard for them to walk," he said.

Intervening in the issue, SBM Manju said that he was a witness to the operation to evict the hawkers, who had been readily occupying the part of the road after vacating their articles from the footpath. But soon after the eviction drive, the hawkers are back on the streets. "This shows how effective our action against encroachers is," he said.

Cutting across party lines, Corporators alleged that some officials were collecting hafta from street vendors and encroachers. Corporator M.V. Ramprasad alleged that many encroachers have occupied certain streets and were threatening other shopkeepers in the locality. He alleged that they run a mafia and the MCC was a mute spectator.

MCC Commissioner Jagadeesha assured them of acting against the encroachers. Deputy Mayor Shafi Ahmed was present.

Two bills raised for one work; Rs. 1.40 crore misappropriated

Corporator M.U. Subbaiah demands lodging of Police complaint

Mysuru, Jan. 30 (SBD&BCT)- At yesterday's MCC monthly meeting, the Council witnessed chaotic scenes over the alleged corruption where two bills worth Rs. 1.40 crore were sanctioned and approved for one work on M.G. Road. Corporators alleged that bogus bills were raised by the officials.

M.U. Subbaiah

Taking the issue seriously, Mayor Pushpalatha Jagannath announced the issuance of notices to Zone 1 Assistant Commissioner Sunil Babu and Junior Engineer Mohan Kumari. The Mayor relieved both of them from their offices and asked them to report to work at the MCC main office.

Corporators blamed the official of being errant. But the Mayor, who announced to relieve both the officials, had to change her decision later after the same Corporators advised the former not to be harsh on them. Moreover, the officials irrespective of departments should be given some time to mend their ways.

MCC Commissioner K.H. Jagadeesha said that it would be inappropriate to initiate action against the officials without following stipulated procedures. Eventually, the Mayor acceded and gave time till February next for the officials to mend their working style.

The issue was raised by opposition leader B.V. Manjunath.

Advocate and Corporator M.U. Subbaiah argued that an FIR has to be lodged as it is prima-facie proved that the officials have misappropriated the money. "Prima-facie looks like the officials have indulged in corruption and as such a Police complaint has to be booked. If the officials are not guilty, then the Police will file a B Report," he said.

"We will explore legal options like filing a case with the Anti-Corruption Bureau (ACB) or file a private complaint in a Court of law against the officers," he said.

Urging the Mayor to call a special Council Session in 15 days as the MCC meets only once a month and one month will be too much of a delay to file an FIR, a special meeting must be called. "Calling an internal enquiry also is of no use as the panel that will probe the misappropriation will not have powers to take penal action against the erring officials. Instead, an FIR must be lodged," Subbaiah argued.

Responding to Subbaiah, Mayor Pushpalatha Jagannath agreed to call a special meeting in 15 days to discuss the alleged corruption issue. This issue stretched beyond 7 pm yesterday as records of the bills had to be brought to the meeting and the Mayor had to take special permission to extend the meeting beyond 7 pm. The meeting ended at 8 pm.

State-level Education Fest begins

Experts call upon teachers to help develop scientific thinking among students

Jawaharlal Nehru Centre for Advanced Studies Research Professor Dr. Amitabh Joshi ringing the school bell to inaugurate the two-day State-level Education Festival in city yesterday as former MLA M.K. Somashekar and others look on.

Mysuru, Jan.30 (PM&NNN)- Children in classes should not be confined only to learning from books but they should also be given education relating to society, said Jawaharlal Nehru Centre for Advanced Studies Research (JNCASR) Professor Dr. Amitabh Joshi.

He was speaking after inaugurating a two-day State-level Education Festival and the 16th anniversary of 'Teachers' monthly magazine organised by Bharatha Jnana Vijanana Samithi (BJVS) at Town Hall, here yesterday and said students should develop a questioning attitude for result oriented learning.

The only way this can happen is when teachers imbibe the qualities of questioning among the students. The teachers should come forward to see that students develop revolutionary and scientific thinking abilities and this should begin at the school stage itself. Hence, teachers have a big role to mould the young minds properly, said Dr. Joshi.

Former MLA M.K. Somashekar who participated as the guest said that in the present society there are efforts going on to destroy ideological and scientific truths and even the media's role in such developments is increasing.

For instance by telecasting astrology-based programmes, the media is encouraging superstitious and blind beliefs. Therefore, it becomes important for the teachers to guide the students properly to gain knowledge, give proper information and develop scientific thinking, he suggested.

Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) Commissioner K. H. Jagadeesha who also spoke, said that this is a unique programme for the educationists to introspect which would help in brining big changes in the field of education.

'Teachers' magazine Chief Editor Prof. B. Gangadhar Murthy who presided over the function said, that the Teachers monthly magazine was started 16 years ago and is being published every month without a break and without expecting any profit.

This is only to bring the teachers, parents and students on a single platform so that it will help throw light on the education field.

A teacher is not just a person but a finely developed mind and they should come forward to help students develop scientific thinking, he said.

The valedictory function will be held at 4 pm today. Including teachers from different parts of the State, many educationists are also participating in the festival.

MCC Additional Commissioner B.C. Shivananda Murthy, BJVS Karnataka State Vice President F. C. Chegareddy, State Secretary Shubashankar Chakravarthy, Mysuru Samithi President Dr. Srine Nayak and others were present.

In this week's Pet Talk, Maneka speaks about fracture in animals and lumps on animal's skin

Pet Talk

Maneka Gandhi

What is a fracture and how is it caused in animals?

Fracture is a broken bone. Any one of the bones in the body can be broken, but it is commonly the legs. Fractures can result from the animal being kicked, from falling, from putting its leg in a hole, or from fighting another animal.

How to recognise when a bone is broken?

A fracture will happen suddenly, it is not like a disease which takes time to develop. Sudden pain and an abnormal movement (lameness) often mean a fracture. The animal will be unwilling to use the part of its body where the fracture is. You may hear the sound (crack) of the two ends of the broken bone as the animal moves. The area around the closed fracture will become swollen. In an open fracture, there will be a wound and bleeding. The ends of the broken bone may show through the wound.

How to treat fractures?

In the case of a large animal, you must prevent the animal moving and ask for help from your veterinarian. Broken legs commonly occur in small or young animals. You should ask your veterinarian for help, but if this is not possible ask a paravet, or the bone setter, in the community to splint it. You can sometimes put dislocated bones back into place if you have someone to help you.

What are lumps on the animal's skin?

A lump under the skin can appear in any place on the body. Lumps may grow and increase in size, or stop growing. Some are hot and painful. Some lumps contain pus (yellowish matter) or blood.

What are Abscesses?

Abscess means infection under the skin. An abscess is a swollen, red and painful lump under the skin. It contains pus (yellowish matter).

How and why are these lumps caused?

An abscess is caused by germs. Germs get under the skin by: i) Bites from other animals, or insects such as ticks and flies; ii) Sharp objects such as thorns or nails piercing the skin; iii) Injections or vaccinations which have been done with dirty needles; iv) Diseases - The lymph nodes (glands) can develop abscesses in some diseases.

Why are there lumps on my pet/animal's skin near the glands or the armpits?

The lymph nodes in animals are similar to those which you have in your body under the jaw and armpits. When an animal is infected, the lymph nodes (glands) often become swollen and can be felt as lumps under the skin. In some diseases, this swelling becomes an abscess.

How to treat these lumps or abscesses?

Some abscesses will break open and the pus will come out. You may need to open an abscess, and can do so when it is soft. To do this quickly you should:

i) Clean the abscess and the area around it with soap and water. Stick a clean needle into the abscess. If blood comes out put the needle into another point on the abscess. If pus comes out when the needle is put into the abscess, remove the needle and with a clean sharp knife, razor blade or scalpel make a small hole through the skin into the pus pocket. Then cut downwards through the skin into the pus and allow the pus to drain out of the abscess. ii) When the pus has been removed, the abscess is treated as a wound.

iii) If the abscess is not ready to open, soak a cloth in hot water and put it over the abscess for 10 minutes at a time. You will need to do these four times daily for a few days until the lump has become large and soft and can be opened.

Pus contains germs. You should clean up the pus and collect it in a piece of paper or cloth and burn it. Wash the area of skin around the abscess. Wash your hands and disinfect all needles and instruments used. If the abscess is deep under the skin and does not break, and the animal has a fever, you will need to ask your veterinarian for help. Antibiotics or sulpha drugs can be given by mouth or by injection for 3 days if you cannot get veterinary help. Do not open abscesses of the lymph nodes but give an antibiotic or sulpha drug for 3 days to treat the infection.

Why are there lumps of blood under the skin?

This will result if an animal has been kicked or beaten. The lump is soft and not hot or painful, and will disappear in 2 to 3 weeks. You should not hit animals, or try to lift an animal by holding its skin. This will cause blood lumps under the skin.

What are solid lumps?

These are hard lumps which are not hot, like abscesses, or soft like blood lumps. Solid lumps may increase in size continuously, or stop growing after some time. You will need to ask your veterinarian for a diagnosis.

What are causes of poisoning in an animal?

Animals do not normally eat poisonous plants. A lack of other feed may cause animals to eat such plants. They may eat unfamiliar poisonous plants if they are moved to a new area where there are different poisonous plants.

Poisons such as warfarin (rat poison) and strychnine can be the causes of poisoning of animals. Arsenic dips may still be used in some areas and can lead to poisoning. Snake bite is the most common form of dangerous poisoning.

There are many causes of poisoning in animals. They are as follows: i) There are many poisonous plants. You should talk to your community and discover what poisonous plants are in your area; ii) Seeds for planting may have been treated with chemicals. If animals or humans eat these, they can die; iii) Strychnine is a poison used for wild animals. It poisons all animals and birds; iv) Weed killers used in agriculture may be poisonous; v) Chemicals used to kill insects on plants or used for dipping against external parasites; vi) Old paints, kerosene, diesel and other fuels and oils; vii) Poison used to kill rats and mice; viii) Animals can be poisoned by salt if they are not able to drink a lot of water; ix) Sometimes people deliberately poison animals.

How to identify the signs of poisoning in animal?

A poisoned animal may die suddenly, or will show the following signs: i) Excessive salivation; ii) The mouth is open, and the tongue hangs out; iii) Diarrhoea and vomiting; iv) Difficulty in breathing.

How to treat poisoned animals?

You cannot do much in a case of poisoning. You should ask for veterinary help as soon as possible. Try to discover what caused the poisoning and stop other animals from being poisoned. i) Charcoal mixed with water and given as a drench is a good treatment for poisoning. Give 1 gm for every 20 kg of body weight; ii) Kaolin (china clay), a white powder, can be mixed with water and given as a drench. Give 10 gm to a small animal and 200 gm to a horse or camel.

The Wedding Gown!

This is an Intermediate Egret - Mesophoyx intermedia, a member of the Ardeidae family of Egrets. The bird is in breeding plumage, with flowing Mantle Plumes. The Feathery Plumes give it the name Egret — "Aigrettes" meaning flowing soft feathers in French and Old English. These birds were hunted down in this plumage, to get the soft filamentous plumes to decorate Ladies Hats of European countries. Now banned and protected by CITES (Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species). [Pic. by SOM photographer M.N. Lakshminarayana Yadav]

Abracadabra... Abracadabra...

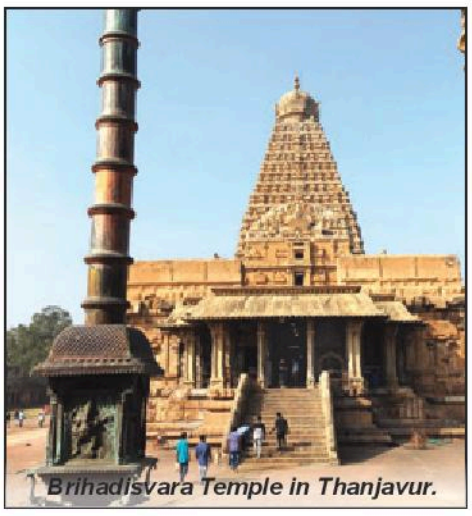
By K.B. Ganapathy

Hindustan: A land of mighty temples-1

Cosmic power and glory of Lord Shiva

It was in 1958, as I remember correctly, I went on a South India tour by train with a group of college students. I was studying at Madikeri First Grade College in Kodagu and our History Professor Muthuswamy, a Tamilian himself, was in charge.

Our first destination was Thanjavur to see the magnificent and mighty Brihadisvara Temple with its legendary 197 ft. tall tower (gopuram). We were told that at the pinnacle of the tower was placed a cupola, a single block of granite stone of 80 tonne weight.



Brihadisvara Temple in Thanjavur.

Our Professor Muthuswamy went on rambling, explaining to his students the 'engineering miracle' executed by the architects of those days and gave a number of explanations conjured up by his fertile imagination. He told us that a six-mile-long ramp was built to lift the mighty single stone cupola and place it atop the tower as its crown. In fact, it seemed to us students, this singular engineering feat was the crowning glory of the Brihadisvara Temple.

I remembered my visit to the temple in 1958 once again when I went there on 11th of January, 2019. This time the tower looked different in colour — yellowish — than what I had seen in 1958. It was looking black. This 11th century temple built by the then King Raja Raja Chola I took seven years to build (between 1003 and 1010 AD). The huge temple complex and its architecture, so unique, it has been declared as the World Heritage Site known as the 'Great Living Chola Temples' by the UNESCO. It is claimed that it is built out of granite, the Vimana Gopura above the sanctum is one of the tallest in South India. The temple has very long and massive corridor and one of the largest, 12 ft. height, Shivalingas in India. I was told this was also the Fort of the King and therefore, the temple was built with a moat around as a defence against enemy attack.

Nearer home, we have these moats around Mysore Palace and also around the Fort in Srirangapatna. There is a huge Nandi Statue, the vehicle of Shiva, under a shrine. I found it a living monument because regular puja rituals are held and people do go there to offer worship. It may be mentioned that dead monuments are those where no daily or regular activities take place with only archaeological and tourist interest. The guide told us that on every Pongal Day, nearly 800 to 1,000 bullocks are brought here as part of worship and the huge courtyard measuring 240 mts x 120 mts would be filled with these animals pressing against each other. There are many sub-shrines for different deities in the temple complex.

The legend of Kannappa Nayanar was narrated to us in a very moving manner by our young guide qualified in engineering. I was reminded of the Kannada film 'Bedara Kannappa' where the devotee of Shiva, Kannappa Nayanar finding an eye of the Shiva idol missing gorges out his own eye to transplant it into the hollow of the idol's missing eye. The guide told us that Kannappa Nayanar was one of Lord Shiva's 63 disciples.

Interestingly, Raja Raja Chola I had a guru by name Karuvoor Devar and there is a shrine built behind the temple in the same premises for this guru as well. History sometimes looks stranger than fiction. That was how I felt when our guide mentioned a war was fought inside the temple premises where the French garrison was billeted. It was the time when British and French were fighting against each other for dominance in that region of Tamil Nadu. As a result, a fierce war was fought here in which the French badly lost and had to withdraw to Pondicherry.

History records that Bhonsle dynasty of Marathas ruled Thanjavur from 1674 to 1900 till the 13th line of succession. Unfortunately for Marathas, the Law of Succession arbitrarily formulated by the British saw the end of Sambhaji Raja Bhonsle's 44-year rule by one dynasty. It was something like what happened to Maharani Lakshmi Bai of Jhansi where, in the absence of direct line of succession, the Hindu tradition of adoption was not allowed and the kingdom came under the suzerainty of the British East India Company. The Rani of Jhansi fought the British and lost, but here the Bhonsle simply surrendered avoiding a war.

Later, we visited the museum which is so very well maintained and has most valuable artifacts of idols, symbols and sculptures of Lord Shiva in his various manifestations, including as Nataraja and a beggar.

For my query about why the statue of Nataraj, as the dancing Shiva, shows Shiva standing on a child-like idol, the guide answered saying that it was not a child but a dwarf demon symbolising ignorance by name Muyalavan. Shiva was dispelling ignorance. This was a revelation to me. The guide continued to explain the symbolisms found in different Nataraja statues in different postures. On seeing a deer in one of his hands, I asked its significance. He said that a deer is a symbol of unstable mind and Shiva by holding it in hand symbolically suggests stopping of our unsteady and wavery minds.

Looking at another idol (see pic.) where Shiva has lifted his right leg to the height of his head, I asked the guide if it has any significance or it was just a dancing posture. He gave a rather naughty smile and narrated an incident. In a dance competition between Shiva and Parvathi, Shiva was finding it difficult to beat Parvathi but his male pride was not ready to accept defeat. Therefore, like Lord Krishna in epic Mahabharata, Shiva indulges in a deceitful act or works on Parvathi's sentiments as a wife. Shiva suddenly lifts his leg to his ear and pulls out the earring. Now Parvathi has to match his posture and act. However, being a married woman, it would be inauspicious and a bad omen to remove her earring, because such an act on her part would spell death to her husband. Lo and behold, the pride of man triumphs.

Lord Shiva removing his earring with his leg.

Lord Shiva as a naked beggar.

As we were moving around the museum, there was another idol of Shiva in a very strange posture — as a naked beggar with a begging bowl etc. The guide was very enthusiastic in explaining the story behind this idol.

It appears the Rishis of Himalayas became divinely very powerful as a result of tapas (penance and meditation). This made them so egoistic that they refused to worship Shiva as the Supreme Lord. Therefore, Shiva decided to teach these arrogant Rishis a lesson.

One day he transformed himself into a naked beggar with his lingam lustfully visible with a coiled serpent ready to strike (see pic). He then went to the hermitage of these Rishis. And lo and behold! Guess what happened? It is said, in Hindu mythology there is no other deity who is so handsome, sexually attractive and capable of rousing the basic instincts of the opposite sex as Lord Shiva. Naturally, all the wives of those arrogant Rishis went after this beggar Shiva... deserting their husbands.

The Rishis realised their blunder and went after Lord Shiva begging that they would henceforth worship him as before and please return their wives to them. Lord Shiva, the beggar, gave a benign smile and said 'tathastu.' So be it. Like the proverb, 'Pride goes before the fall' we can say here that 'Pride goes before losing wife!'

Gandhiji remembered on Sarvodaya Day

Freedom fighter Y.C. Revanna, Senior Pourakarmika Guruvamma, Vice-Chancellor Prof. G. Hemantha Kumar and others offering floral tributes to bust of Mahatma Gandhi as part of Sarvodaya Day (Martyrs Day) at Gandhi Bhavan premises in Manasagangothri this morning. Picture right shows students of University College of Fine Arts with Principal Dr. C. Ramaswamy offering pranams to the Mahatma flanked by Manuben (great grand-niece of Gandhiji) to his right and Abha Chatterji (his adopted daughter) to his left at Gandhi Bhavan.

Mysuru, Jan.30 (MTY&NNN)- Sarvodaya Day or Martyrs Day was observed in several parts of the city to pay homage to the Father of the Nation Mahatma Gandhi, who was assassinated on this day, 71 years ago.

An elaborate function organised by Department of Gandhian Studies and Department of Studies in Commerce, University of Mysore, was held at Gandhi Bhavan in Manasagangothri here this morning, where not only the bust of Gandhiji is there, but it also houses the replica of Sabarmathi Ashram and the sculptures of the Mahatma in various poses.

Freedom Fighter Y.C. Revanna, speaking on the occasion, recalled the contributions of Mahatma Gandhi and said that the sacrifice for gaining the country's independence by the leader of the nation was unforgettable.

Along with the Mahatma many youth also fought for the freedom movement and many had been jailed. The influence that the Mahatma had over the entire nation was something that was seen to be believed as the whole country including farmers, youth, women, poor and illiterate rallied behind him in his non-violent struggle against the British, he said and added that at the same time the violent struggle which a few leaders advocated was abhorred by the majority in the country.

University of Mysore (UoM) Vice-Chancellor Prof. G. Hemantha Kumar said that though Mahatma's dream for independent India proved fruitful, his Sarvodaya Movement (meaning welfare or upliftment of all) remained unfulfilled. His followers and devotees, however, tried to fulfil this dream of the Mahatma.

The students of Master in Social Work (MSW) clad in white clothes took out a peaceful march from Gandhi Bhavan to Centenary Clock Tower singing Gandhiji's favourite bhajans in which foreign students also participated.

Senior Pourakarmika Guruvamma and freedom fighter Revanna were felicitated.

UoM Registrar Prof. R. Rajanna, Registrar (Evaluation) Prof. J. Somashekar, Gandhi Bhavan Director Prof. M.S. Shekar, Department of Commerce Chairman Prof. M. Nagaraju, Oriental Research Institute Director Dr. S. Shivarajappa, MSW Department Chairman Prof. R. Shivappa and others were present.

Mysuru District and City Freedom Fighters Association members observed Sarovdaya Day with students at the Freedom Fighters Park in Subbrayanakere this morning.

Meanwhile, the District Administration also observed Sarvodaya Day at the Deputy Commissioner's Office with DC Abhiram G. Sankar, ADC B.R. Poornima, Assistant Commissioner H. N. Shivegowda and others observing two minutes silence and later taking oath. Earlier, Bhajans were also sung.

The members of Mysuru District and City Freedom Fighters Association gathered at Freedom Fighters Park in Subbarayanakere where they shared their experiences with the students about their struggle for country's independence.

Three friends-turned-foes held for auto driver's murder

Mysuru, Jan. 30 (RK&BCT)- The City Police have arrested three persons in connection with the murder of an auto driver in 12 hours. The accused and the victim were friends and had developed enmity over a financial dispute.

Twenty-eight-year-old S. Manu alias Johnny was murdered on the intersection of Sunday night and Monday morning near Saraswathipuram Fire Brigade and the assailants had stabbed him over 15 times. They had left the dagger dangling on his back and had left the place. Lakshmipuram Police had registered a case.

The accused are identified as Nikhil alias Appu, Madhusudhan alias Madhu and Yoganand, all auto drivers and friends of Manu. While Manu was residing at his uncle's place at Muneshwara Nagar, Appu and Madhu are the residents of Gundu Rao Nagar on the outskirts of the city. Yoganand is a resident of Ashokapuram.

According to the Police, the accused had allegedly killed Manu over a monetary dispute. Manu's paternal uncle Mahadev, who had also suspected the handiwork of Appu and Madhu behind his nephew's murder, had told the same to the investigators.

Manu, who was earlier driving the autorickshaw owned by Madhu, had met with an accident resulting in the damage of the vehicle. However, Manu was unwilling to share the expenses towards the repair. Manu also refused to get the vehicle released from the Police Station and had taken another auto for rent. This had enraged Madhu.

Recently, the accused had exchanged heated argument with Manu over the same issue near the latter's house. As Manu had turned adamant, Madhu was angry with the former. On the intersection of Sunday night and Monday morning a group of passengers had hired Manu's auto from the prepaid autorickshaw stand at KSRTC Sub-Urban Bus Stand. It was during that time, the accused, who followed the vehicle in an auto till a distance, executed their plan.

Lakshmipuram Police Inspector S. Gangadhar, Siddappaji and Kumar were in the investigation team. The auto that was used by the accused to follow Manu and the murder weapon have been seized.

Nikhil told the Police that he did not ask the names of the two persons but just followed his brother-in-law's instructions and left the place.

Initial investigation revealed that after taking the cash from Nikhil, the two persons along with some others took Senthil to Bannur and allegedly murdered him, the Police said. There are grievous marks on Senthil's head and eyes. Police said that Senthil would have had a dispute with the assailants over some financial transaction.

After murdering Senthil, his body was dumped in the Bidrallihundi Canal. His scooter, mobile phone and cash have been taken away by the assailants. Bannur Inspector Ajay and Circle Inspector Lava have booked a case. A special team has been formed to trace the killers. Police are examining CCTV footages around Gun House Circle and are tracing the Call Detail Records (CDR) of the victim and the killers.

Newly-opened hospitals need better infrastructure: Vasu

Says he is an aspirant for Mysuru-Kodagu Lok Sabha seat

Mysuru, Jan.30 (PM&US)- Infrastructure at the newly-opened Sri Jayadeva Institute of Cardiovascular Sciences and Research on KRS Road, Trauma Centre at the premises of PKTB Hospital on KRS Road and Panchakarma Research Centre of Government Ayurveda Medical College at Brindavan Extension in city should be improved and staff crunch should be resolved before the announcement of Lok Sabha poll dates, said former MLA Vasu.

Former MLA Vasu addressing a press meet in city yesterday as Mayor Pushpalatha Jagannath and former Mayors B.K. Prakash and Modamani look on.

Addressing a press meet at a private hotel in city yesterday, Vasu recalled that the aforementioned health centres were initiated during his tenure as an MLA but regretted that shortcomings were still looming large at those Centres. He said that there is a severe shortage of support staff though the infrastructure is ultra-modern.

He said that he would visit those places, list out the requirements and submit the same to Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy. He suggested the government to fill up staff at the hospitals temporarily on contract basis to benefit the public.

Referring to national politics, Vasu contended that most of the development activities were initiated under the Congress-led UPA government but bemoaned that Prime Minister Narendra Modi was claiming them as his achievements adding that it is all like a one-man show.

"For example the Hunsur Road Flyover at Hinkal was initiated during 2013-2014 and four grade separators were mooted. Ultimately, only one flyover was constructed due to various reasons. The project was completed out of funds released by Centre (60 percent), State (20 percent) and MUDA (20 percent) and no single government can claim credit for it. It is a joint effort," Vasu said.

When reporters asked his stand during the ensuing LS polls, Vasu said that he too is an aspirant from Mysuru-Kodagu LS Constituency but said that he would abide by the directions of the Party High Command.

He said that he would make way if former CM Siddharamaiah or JD(S) Supremo H.D. Deve Gowda opt to contest from Mysuru-Kodagu seat.

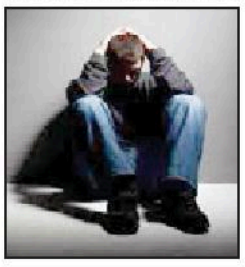
WORD OF THE DAY

Doldrums

Pronunciation: DOHL-drumz.



Meaning: A spell of listlessness or despondency.
Origin: Almost everyone gets the doldrums—a feeling of low spirits and lack of energy—every once in a while. The doldrums experienced by sailors, however, are usually of a different variety. In the early-19th century, the word once reserved for a feeling of despondency came to be applied to certain tropical regions of the ocean marked by the absence of strong winds. Sailing vessels, reliant on wind propulsion, struggled to make headway in these regions, leading to long, arduous journeys. The exact etymology of doldrums is not certain, though it is believed to be related to the Old English dol, meaning "foolish"—a history it shares with our adjective dull.
Example: He has been in the doldrums ever since she left him.

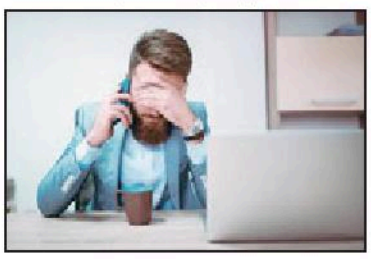
PHRASE OF THE DAY

Doom and gloom

Meaning: A feeling of pessimism and despondency, often with regard to business or political prospects.



Origin: The phrase 'doom and gloom', which is also seen in its variant for 'gloom and doom', sounds as though it might be quite old. The expression's use was initially limited largely to the fields of finance and politics and wasn't commonplace in the wider language until it was popularised via the 1947 stage show Finian's Rainbow. Harburg and Saidy's musical was a great popular success and was turned into a film in 1968. The BBC had a hand in spreading the use of the word 'doom' and hence 'doom and gloom' in the UK. In 1970 they broadcast an influential science fiction television series called Doomwatch, which highlighted various potential doom-laden threats to civilisation.
Example: I thought initially it could all be doom and gloom but actually there are a lot of things we can do.
